Fabrication Service to the Film, Video, Theatre and Event Industries

About Our Crew

What makes Stagefab the success it is today is the years of experience our crew has combined with their dedication and commitment to ensuring that a job is well done. Our crew is constantly going above and beyond the call of duty because they care!

You get what you want not what you asked for

At Stagefab we view things from your side of things, putting ourselves in your place to make sure that we are providing you with what you want. When you call with your requirements, our crew will fully discuss your applications. As a result you may end up with something different but better than what was asked for. Our crew ensures that it is the best possible for you and your production, after all you deserve the best.

Our crew is on the show before and after the call time because they take pride in what they do.

The desire of Stagefab's crew to get the job done is constantly being shown daily. This is from tracking shipments by our customer service people on their home computer to our sewers coming in on a Sunday (even on Mother's Day) to get the job finished for first thing Monday morning. Our installers will work to the wee hours of the morning to get their portion of the last minute request done. They do this because they are proud of their accomplishments and know that your needs are important to you so they are important to us.

Our customers say thanks for a job well done

At Stagefab we believe very much that everybody from the person who cleans the washrooms to the president of the company are part of our crew. Everyone working together ensures that your show runs successfully. Every time we get a thank-you note or a phone call complementing us on our work or service we make sure that the individuals involved get a copy. After all it is them that did the work and we want to make sure that they know that their work is appreciated.

Its our crew that makes Stagefab what it is Stagefab has some of the best, if not the best people in the industry that don't mind going the extra mile to ensure the satisfaction of each and every customer. They have been known to help the customer on products are not provided by Stagefab. Stagefab's crew is a team of individuals whom each bring their style and expertise to how Stagefab operates. It is these individuals that make Stagefab the unique company it is today.

Let us be part of your crew
